PREFACE AND PROSPECTUS.

THIS Directory is one of a regular series, of the cities of Port Huron and Fort Gratiot, and St. Clair County, published by L. A. Sherman & Co., and The Sherman Company, their successors. The canvass of the two cities has been the most thorough and careful ever made, and although absolute correctness is impossible, we believe it will be found to contain very few errors or omissions, as the population and places of residence of citizens stood when the canvass was made, in October and November, 1889.

It has been found in the past that there was no paying demand for a City Directory oftener than once in two years, and that as a business enterprise the publication of a County Directory in addition is not warranted at more frequent intervals than four years. It is our intention to publish a Directory as often as there is a general demand for it, which at some future time may be every year; but our present expectation is that the next issue will be in December, 1891, for the year 1892.

Our thanks are due to citizens of Port Huron and Fort Gratiot, and especially to the business men of the two cities, for their liberal patronage.

CITY OF PORT HURON.

An historical sketch of the City of Port Huron, from the Directory of 1887-8, will be found in the Appendix to this Directory, pages 25 to 29.

During the years 1888-9 the population of the city increased nearly 2,000, hundreds of new dwellings and many business blocks were erected, and prosperity was general. Work upon the great railway tunnel was begun and is now (November, 1889) being pushed with all possible speed.

In the early part of the year 1889 the Port Huron & Northwestern Railway was sold to the Flint & Pere Marquette Company, and standard gauge cars now run to the city from Saginaw over the new line, built entirely on the south side of Black River.

CITY ELECTION OF 1889.

During the session of the Michigan Legislature of 1889 the city charter was amended so as to provide for the election of mayor, city clerk and city treasurer for two years, instead of one year, as previously. The vote of the city on these officers, by wards, at the April election, 1889, was as follows:

CITY OF FORT GRATIOT.

Fort Gratiot is located in the Township of Fort Gratiot, directly north of the fifth ward, city of Port Huron, and is bounded as follows: North by the center line of the Holland road, south by the fifth ward city of Port Huron, east by Lake Huron and St. Clair river, west by Black river.

The city of Fort Gratiot was incorporated in March, 1889, and held its first charter election in April of that year, Robert E. French being the first mayor.

It has a large and commodious public school building, city hall, park, the Walker system of water works, and is lighted with electricity. The extensive car shops of the Chicago & Grand Trunk railway, known as the "Block I shops," are located in the first ward, and cover an entire block, also part of Cedar and Spruce streets, and all Conger avenue, which has been vacated to give the company needed room for carrying on their largely increasing business.

The grounds of the Port Huron Agricultural and Driving Park Association are located on the River Road between Harker and Superior streets.

The Gratiot Electric Railway ($2\frac{1}{4}$ miles) connecting at the junction of Huron avenue and Pine street with the Port Huron Electric Railway, extends to the different beaches and summer resorts north of the city, on lake Huron.

The city contains a population of 2,662; has 528 private residences and several large and substantial business blocks. Its citizens are largely employed in the different departments of the Grand Trunk and the Chicago & Grand Trunk Railways, whose main crossing of St. Clair River is located immediately south of the city.

The city is divided into three wards, located as follows:

First Ward—From the center line of Huron avenue all east to Lake Huron.

Second Ward—From the center line of Huron avenue west to the center line of Fourth Street.

Third Ward—From the center line of Fourth street all west to Black River.

COUNTY OF ST. CLAIR.

HISTORICAL SKETCH.

The Lower Peninsula of the state of Michigan, as it now exists, with the exception of some changes in its southern boundary, was detached from the territory of Indiana and given a separate territorial existence in 1805, William Hull being the first governor, with the seat of government at Detroit. Up to the year 1818 the territory now comprised within St. Clair county formed the township of St. Clair, and was a part of the county of Wayne. In that year the county of Macomb was organized, St. Clair constituting a portion of it.

St. Clair county, including the territory now constituting Sanilac county, was organized by proclamation of Gov. Cass, May 8, 1821, its area being about 1,500 square miles, and its population some 80 families, settled almost entirely along St. Clair river. The county seat was located at St. Clair, where there were half a dozen houses at that time. James Fulton and William Thorn agreed to build a court house, but failed to do so, and for several years court was held in Mr. Fulton's house. Mr. Fulton built a jail for the county in 1821, for which the contract price was $35, the hinges and bolts, furnished by Andrew Westbrook, costing $6.62 extra.

The location of the county seat was not satisfactory to the residents of either the northern or southern sections of the county, and a movement for its removal to Newport (now Marine City), began almost immediately. Commissioners appointed for the purpose investigated the matter, and reported to the legislative council of the territory, January 19, 1825, in favor of the retention of the county seat at St. Clair. Subscriptions amounting to $637.50 were made for the erection of buildings at Newport, if the county seat should be located there, but this movement also failed. Previous to the action of the legislative council retaining the seat of justice at St. Clair, Thomas Palmer and David C. McKinstry had pledged themselves to build a jail and court house, which they did, the building being of hewn logs, about 24 x 34 feet in size, with living rooms for the jailer and cells for prisoners on the ground floor, and a court room on the second floor. It was accepted by the board of supervisors September 3, 1827, although not constructed according to contract. This building was used until 1853, when it was destroyed by fire. The brick building erected in its place was used for county purposes until the removal of the county seat to Port Huron, in 1871, and the jail continued to be occupied for keeping prisoners until the completion of the new jail, in 1884.

An unsuccessful attempt to remove the county seat to Port Huron was made in 1842. In 1868-9 a proposition to remove the county seat to Smith's Creek was carried, but no steps for its actual removal were taken. In 1870 the board of supervisors voted by a two-thirds majority to remove the county seat to Port Huron, and the proposition was ratified by the people by a majority of 532. The first meeting of the board of supervisors at the new county seat opened April 27, 1871. The City of Port Huron subsequently built the present court house and city hall, at a cost of nearly $40,000. The present jail was built by the county in 1884, at a cost of about $15,000.

Organization of the townships of the county as they now exist was effected at different times, exact particulars being given under the township headings preceding the township directory portion of this book.

There are conflicting theories as to the origin of the name St. Clair, as applied to the lake and river bearing that name. The one most generally accepted is, that in the year 1679 the crew of the schooner Griffin landed on the shores of Lake St. Clair on the feast day of Sainte Claire, and named the lake in honor of the founder of the Poor Claires. Another is that the name came from an officer named St. Clair, who was on duty in this section in the American service after the Revolutionary war. St. Clair county was named after the river which forms its eastern boundary.

One of the chief industries of the county from the time of its earliest settlement by English speaking white men, until the timber had all disappeared, was lumbering. Between 1840 and 1870 many fortunes were made in the lumber industry by citizens of the county, most of whom are now dead, or have long since removed to other localities. Since 1873 very little lumber has been cut in St. Clair county except from logs brought down in rafts from points on Lake Huron.

The marine interests of the county have always been important, many vessels having been built at the river towns. A large number of vessels have also been owned in the county at all times since the lake marine became fairly established, and hundreds of its citizens follow what may be called a "lake-faring" life during the season of navigation, in all capacities, from captain down.

The development of the salt industry dates from 1882, when the Marine City Stave company put down a well to the salt rock, found at a depth of about 1,700 feet. To Crocket McElroy, of St. Clair, who was president of the Marine City Stave Company at that time, is due all the credit for the discovery and practical demonstration of the value of the vast bed of salt rock which underlies St. Clair county.

The agricultural advantages of St. Clair county were slow in developing, compared with those of interior counties where the surface is more rolling and the soil more diversified. The country adjacent to St. Clair river, and extending back from 10 to 25 miles, is flat, and slopes very gradually toward the river. Without doubt in past geological ages it has been covered with water, and as the lake receded sand ridges were formed in places, and many square miles of the surface still remains covered with drift sand, to a depth varying from a few inches to several feet. Such soil is of course not very strong; but by far the greater portion of the surface is clay, or clay loam, or clay and sand mixed. The subsoil everywhere is clay, which has a depth of 100 feet or more at nearly all points where borings have been made. On the whole the soil of the county is strong and rich, and with thorough drainage St. Clair county will come to rank high as an agricultural section.

The first railroad built through the county was the Grand Trunk, from Port Huron to Detroit; the second the present Chicago & Grand Trunk; the third the St. Clair branch of the Michigan Central, from St. Clair to Ridgeway; and the fourth the Port Huron & Northwestern, having three branches or divisions within the limits of the county.

With few exceptions the wagon roads of the county have not yet been made permanently good. Some plank roads were built between 1850 and 1870, but these have mostly disappeared. Gravel roads have been built to a limited extent, but the scarcity of gravel, except in the southwestern portion of the county, greatly retards this most desirable public improvement.

The first permanent white settlement on the St. Clair river appears to have been at Port Huron, so far as there is any positive record. Seven French families settled there in 1790, their names being given in the historical sketch of Port Huron in this book. It is known, also, that the families of Capt. Cottrell, Capt. Alexander Harrow, Capt. William Thorn and a Mr. Paschal resided is what in now Cottrellville township as early as 1796, but the precise date of their settlement there is not known. A full sketch of the pioneers of the county, or of pioneer life here, does not come within the scope of this work, nor would such a sketch be of special value for reference.

COUNTY FINANCES.

BOUNDARIES AND POLITICAL DIVISIONS.

St. Clair county is bounded on the east by Lake Huron and St. Clair river; on the south by St. Clair river, Lake St. Clair and Macomb county; on the west by Macomb and Lapeer counties, and on the north by Sanilac county. It is irregular in shape, Macomb county lying south of its two westerly tiers of townships, and west of its three southerly tiers.

As now constituted, St. Clair county is united with Macomb county to form a senatorial district.

St. Clair county is divided into two representative districts, constituted as follows:

First District.—Berlin, Casco, China, Clay, Columbus, Cottrellville, East China, Emmet, Ira, Kimball, Mussey, Riley, St. Clair, Wales, City of Marine City, City of St. Clair. Total population, 23,825.

Second District.—Brockway, Burchville, Clyde, Fort Gratiot, Grant, Greenwood, Kenockee, Lynn, Port Huron, City of Port Huron. Total population 22,958.

St. Clair county constitutes a portion of the Seventh Congressional District, the other counties of the district being Macomb, Lapeer, Huron and Sanilac.

PORT HURON.

HISTORICAL SKETCH.

In the year 1686 a French military post was established at the point where Fort Gratiot was formerly located, near the northern limits of Port Huron city. This fort was called St. Joseph, and was occupied for about two years. After its abandonment no further settlement was attempted at this point until 1790, 104 years later. During that time, and, indeed, for some time afterward, the ground on which the city of Port Huron is built was a favorite camping place for the Indians, as many as 3,000 being in camp here at one time. In the summer of 1790 seven Frenchmen with their families located here, their names being as follows: Anselm Petit, Francois Lerviere, Baptiste Levais, J. B. Duchesne, Michael Jarvais, J. B. Courneais, and Peter Moreaux. M. Jarvais built a saw mill on what is now called Indian Creek, then known as La Riviere Jarvais. Black River was then known as La Riviere Delude.

During the war of 1812 the settlers were obliged to leave their homes, but they returned in 1815 with reinforcements, and again took possession of them.

Edward Petit, it is supposed, was the first white child born within the territory now included in the city of Port Huron. He was a son of Anselm Petit, and was born in a log house near the foot of Court street, February 7, 1813. Anselm Petit built the first frame house here, in the year 1819. The same year Daniel B. Harrington located here, and John Riley, a half-breed, who claimed ownership of the land, built a house near the point where Military street crosses Black River, on the southwest corner of Military and Water streets. At that time nearly the whole of the territory of Michigan was a wilderness.

Originally the village and township were called Desmond. The township was organized in 1826, a meeting being held on the river front through Pine Grove park to the Grand Trunk depot, was opened in 1867. It has seen many changes since that time, and is now the Port Huron Electric railway, extending north to Gratiot beach, a distance of nearly four miles.

Nearly all permanent public improvements of which the city is now possessed have been introduced since 1870. A brick high school building (since burned and rebuilt) had been erected previous to that time, as had also the second ward school building, and two wooden swing bridges across Black river (both since replaced by iron bridges) were built in 1869. In 1870 the Port Huron Gas Light Company completed its works, and a portion of the streets of the city were lighted for the first time.

In 1871 the agitation for the construction of water works began, and the proposition received the approval of the Common Council and citizens the same year. The opposition of Mayor John Miller caused delay, however, and it was not until the summer of 1873, after the election of John Johnston as mayor, that the works were finally completed and put in operation. The machinery was built by the Holly company, of Lockport, N. Y., and the first pipe was laid by Walker & Rich. The works have proved a great success.

The city hall and court house was completed in 1873, costing nearly $40,000. The city grants the use of the first and second stories free to the county, retaining the basement for city purposes.

The corner stone of the Government building, in which are located the postoffice, customs and other Government offices, and the U. S. court room, was laid October 8th, 1874, and the building was completed two years later. Its cost was $250,000.

The building of sewers, the laying of pavements, and the graveling of several streets, has been in progress since 1876, and these improvements have greatly benefitted the city.

The sale of the Fort Gratiot military reservation in 1871 gave the city an opportunity to grow to the northward, and the present populous fifth ward is the result. The sale of the remnant of the reservation to the P. H. & N. W. Ry. Co. took place in 1880.

The Port Huron Telephone exchange was opened in 1880, and electric lighting was introduced into the city in 1884. The practical development of natural gas dates from 1886, when Edgar White introduced it into his residence for heating purposes. The laying of pipes for the distribution of natural gas began in October, 1887.

The lumber business, which until 1873 was the chief industry of the city, decreased rapidly after that year, the great fires having killed most of the timber along Black river and its tributaries, and in recent years all the logs cut in the city have been brought in rafts from points along Lake Huron.

The grain trade, which is now very large, has grown up entirely since the Chicago & Grand Trunk and Port Huron & Northwestern railways were built.

The shipbuilding business, which at one time included the construction of many new vessels, has of late years been confined almost exclusively to repairs, but still employs a large number of men. The marine interests of the city also continue large, and its wholesale trade is steadily increasing. Its manufacturing interests are also important and growing.

STREETS AND NUMBERS.

By the provisions of an ordinance adopted by the Common Council, and approved March 8, 1887, the city of Port Huron is divided into two districts for house numbering.

One hundred numbers are allowed for each block, and 20 feet front is allowed for each number. Thus, in blocks having 400 feet front, there are 40 numbers, beginning, for example, on a street running east and west, between Sixth and Seventh streets, at 601, and ending at 640.

On the south side of Black river streets running east and west have the even numbers on the south side and the odd numbers on the north side. The numbering begins at St. Clair river, the blocks east of First street being numbered from 1 to 100, between First and Second streets 101 to 200, and so on westward to the city limits.

On streets running north and south, south of Black river, the even numbers are on the east side and the odd numbers on the west side. Numbering begins at Black river, in the northwestern corner of the fourth ward. The numbers between Miller street and Lapeer avenue are between 601 and 700; between Lapeer avenue and Gillett street 701 to 800; between Gillett and Howard streets 801 to 900; and so on to the southern limits of the city.

On the north side of Black river the same general plan prevails, numbers on east and west streets beginning at St. Clair river and running west, 100 for each block; and on north and south streets beginning at Black river and running north.
